

Contributing Authors

Jan Armstrong is on the faculty of the College of Education, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque. Her work focuses on professional cultures, anthropology and education, qualitative research, and contextual human development. She is the President of the Council for Social Foundations of Education (CSFE) and a longstanding member of the American Educational Studies Association (AESA).

John F. Covaleskie is Associate Professor of Educational Studies, University of Oklahoma and Professor Emeritus, School of Education, Northern Michigan University. He is an active member of the Philosophy of Education Society and the American Educational Studies Association.

Douglas R. Davis is an Associate Professor of Educational Leadership and Coordinator of Educational Leadership Programs, University of Mississippi. His main areas of expertise and research are teacher assessment and professional development, the preparation of educational leaders, and history and philosophy of education. Dr. Davis has published in many educational journals and has presented at over fifty scholarly and professional conferences. He is past editor of The Journal of Personnel Evaluation in Education and is past president of the Society of Philosophy and History of Education.

Leigh Ann Haefner is an Associate Professor of Science Education, Penn State Altoona. Her research interests include prospective elementary teachers' understandings of scientific inquiry and the role of evidence in scientific explanations. She is a member of the National Association of Research in Science Teaching and the Association of Science Teacher Education.

—continued on page 42—