

Contributing Authors

(Continued from page 6)

Ronald B. Jacobson is an Assistant Professor, School of Education, Northwest University, Kirkland, Washington. He teaches in the MIT, MEd and undergraduate education programs. His research interests include school bullying, student identity construction, moral education and school culture.

Jeffrey Ayala Milligan is an Associate Professor of philosophy of education and international development education in the Department of Educational Leadership and Policy Studies, Florida State University. His research focuses on relations between religious communities and education in the U.S. and the Muslim societies of Southeast Asia.

Suzanne Rosenblith is Associate Professor of Educational Foundations, Clemson University. Her research interests include religion and public education, and philosophy of education. She is a member of the American Educational Studies Association and the Philosophy of Education Society.

Timothy D. Slekar is an Associate Professor of Teacher Education, Penn State Altoona. He obtained his Ph.D. from the University of Maryland, College Park and M. Ed. from Millersville University of Pennsylvania. His areas of research include preservice teacher cognitive processes in learning to teach elementary aged students American history.

Huajun Zhang is Assistant Professor of Teacher Education, Beijing Normal University (China). She is a member in the Comparative and International Education Society.